UNION TRUST TO REORGANIZE AS R.F.C. GIVES AID

New National bank to rise
From Liquid Assets of Present Institution

HELP FOR SMALLER
BANKS SEEN, ALSO

Secretary Woodin Plans
Steps to Remedy Akron Conditions

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, O., March 30. — A new National bank, primed with $25,000,000 of Reconstruction Finance Corp. funds, will rise on the liquid assets of the unlicensed Union Trust Co. and within a month may pay the latter's 200,000 depositors approximately $38,000,000.

As soon as the institution, to be known as the First National Bank of Cleveland, can complete its organization program, it is expected to pump $4,000,000 into the vaults of 150 smaller northern Ohio banks, many of which remain unlicensed largely because of the money they have tied up in the Union Trust.

To effect the organization quickly, the directors of the Union Trust were called to meet today.

Others Reorganize
Spurred by the success of Union officials in their quest for federal aid, officials of the likewise unlicensed Guardian Trust Co. and Lorain Street Savings & Trust Co. plunged into their reorganization plans with renewed vigor. Similarly, at Akron, the First-Central Trust Co., a seeker for a National charter, received the assurance of Rep. Dow W. Harter that Secretary of the Treasury W. H. Woodin would give that city's problem his personal attention.

Meanwhile at Columbus, Theodore H. Tangeman, state director of commerce, was called to confer with Gov. George White, supposedly regarding the federal government's request that state authorities appoint a conservator for the old Union Trust.

The conservator, Governor White has indicated, would be a person amenable to the federal government. His task would be to liquidate the assets of the Union gradually.

As stated by Jesse H. Jones, director of the R. F. C., the government "has agreed to match dollars with the people of Cleveland in organizing a new National bank to take over the more liquid assets of the Union Trust Co. and succeed to a part of the business of the Trust company."

R. F. C. To Make Loan
In addition to buying between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 of preferred stock, depending on how much common stock is subscribed locally, the R. F. C. will make a new loan of up to $20,000,000 to the Union Trust.

This loan will enable the new First National to start business with $38,000,000 in cash, enough to make an initial distribution to depositors equal to 40 per cent of the amount of their balances in the Union Trust on Feb. 27, when the Union placed a limitation of five per cent on withdrawals. The 40 per cent includes that five per cent, whether taken from the bank already or not.

Heads of all Cleveland banks opening normally greeted the announcement of the First National's pending organization with enthusiasm.

May Be Rail Czar

Appointment of a "federal coordinator of railroads" with broad powers to effect economies in operation of the lines has developed as the keystone in President Roosevelt's plans for dealing with the railroad emergency. Prominently mentioned in this connection is Walter D. Hines, of New York, who was director general of railroads during the World War. He is an authority on railroads and anti-trust laws.

PRIEST'S HOME IS ROCKED AS BOMB EXPLODES

Blast of Black Powder Set Off In Residence of Rev. Fr. Coughlin

WINDOWS BROKEN, NO ONE INJURED

Detroit Pastor Engaged In Controversy On Banking Situation

(By Associated Press)
DETROIT, March 30.—A black powder bomb was exploded in the basement of the home of the Rev. Fr. Charles E. Coughlin in Royal Oak, a suburb, early this morning. The bomb caused slight damage, but no one was injured.

Under Priest's Bedroom
The bomb was thrown through a basement window under the bedroom in which Fr. Coughlin was sleeping, police were told. Several windows were broken and a supply of canned goods in the basement was damaged.

Fr. Coughlin, who is pastor of the Little Flower of Jesus church in Royal Oak, has made himself known nationally through radio broadcasts of sermons and economic discussions over an independent chain of stations. Recently he had been engaged in a heated controversy over the Detroit bank situation.

In addition to Fr. Coughlin, the house was occupied by Fr. John Tully, his assistant, and Fr. William of the Dun Scotus faculty. The latter two were asleep upstairs.

Lowered By Rope
Police found a long cord hanging in the basement window under Fr. Coughlin's bedroom and reasoned that the bomb had been lowered into the basement through the window.

The explosion came at a time when Fr. Coughlin was in the limelight locally as a campaigner in behalf of the newly established National Bank of Detroit and against those who advocated reopening of Detroit's two big national banks, the latter institutions — the First National-Detroit and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce — have been placed in the hands of federal conservators.

SENATE ADOPTS PENSION BILL

But Measure Is Returned To House With Two Amendments Added

COLUMBUS, O., March 30.—The initiated old age pension bill was approved by the senate today, 77 to 3, after two important amendments were adopted. The measure now goes to the house for concurrence in the amendments.

Under one amendment, the state would not make any appropriation for the fund until 1935. Another would split the costs of financing the system between the state and the various counties.

Opponents of the amendment splitting the costs contended it would mean more taxes, and that since the bill would be subject to a referendum, the voters would kill it.

Improved Defense Proposed by House

ELLSWORTH AVE. GROUP IS FIRM ON WITHDRAWAL

30 Property Owners Confer with Claims Committee of City Council

VOTE SOLIDLY ON PLEA FOR REMOVAL

Lawmakers Point to Impossibility of Improvements Now

North Ellsworth ave property owners, in a conference Wednesday night with members of city council, stood firm in their requests that they be permitted to withdraw from the municipality, again taking stand that they are being burdened with the payment of city tax rates without obtaining city benefits.

The meeting was held at the Starbuck Bros. tin shop, North Ellsworth ave, with 30 property owners, including several women, attending the gathering. C. F. Christian presided with Willis R. Hole acting as secretary.

Three From Council
George R. Harroff, chairman, Joseph Calladine and Paul J. Dean, forming the claims committee, represented city council at the meeting.

Estimates prepared by City Engineer F. S. Barckhoff, figuring the cost of the extension of municipal water mains and lighting circuits north on North Ellsworth to Fourteenth st were presented to the property owners by Councilman Harroff with the explanation that the city will, in all probability provide all benefits for the residences of that area as soon as the city is financially able.

Questioned by Christian as to whether it is possible for the municipality to undertake the improvements now, the councilmen admitted that it is not and explained that, in their opinions, it "is unfair for property owners of the street to expect it at the present time."

The property owners took a vote and it was unanimous for withdrawal.

They explained that, since being

"SALEM MEASURE ILLEGAL"—SCOTT

Solicitor Rules that State Statutes Will Nullify Local Ordinance

Declaring that existing city ordinances will become illegal through the approval by the Ohio legislature of the new beer measure, City Solicitor Cecil K. Scott today ruled that the sale of 3.2 per cent beer here will be legal on and after next Friday, April 7.

Scott issued his opinion today following a study of city ordinances as compared with the new beer bill which last night was approved by the house of representatives and which probably will be given to Governor White for his signature by daylight. Conflicts between the new bill and the old city ordinance, passed after prohibition was enacted 15 years ago, will make the local measures illegal, the solicitor ruled.

Cites Conflicts
The conflicts, Scott said, arise from the fact that the state bill legalizes beer of no more than 3.2 per cent alcoholic content, while the municipal ordinance states that no "liquors of more than one-half of one per cent alcoholic content," may be sold, displayed or drunk.

Another conflict comes through the new bill's stipulation that li-

WASHINGTON, March 30.—The Celler-Copeland medicinal liquor bill, removing all restrictions on prescriptions by physicians, was passed today by the house.

It now goes to the white house having passed the senate yesterday.

VOTES 95 TO 34 TO LEGALIZE 3.2 BREW

Bill Returns to Senate for Concurrence In Minor Amendments, and Then Goes to Governor, Probably Before Nightfall

COLUMBUS, O., March 30.—The state beer bill completed its legislative tour today when the senate concurred in house amendments by a vote of 95 to 34. After being signed by officers of the senate, the measure will go to Governor White for his signature.

Several days will elapse before the bill reaches the governor. It must first be engrossed, and then signed by the senate officials. Leaders of the legislature said they expected to place the bill in the executive's hands on Saturday, at the earliest, and possibly not until Monday. The governor has indicated that he will sign it immediately. The measure, bearing an emergency clause, becomes effective just as soon as he places his signature on it.

Under the new law, 3.2 per cent beer will be legalized in Ohio at 12:01 a. m., April 7, by those who have obtained licenses, and sale can be started.

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, O., March 30.—"Good palatable beer" has the approval of the Ohio legislature.

The house of representatives, after more than three hours of debate, voted 95 to 34 to legalize beer of 3.2 per cent by weight and sent the bill back to the senate.

An emergency clause, to make the bill effective immediately after its signing by Governor George White, was attached to the measure. The measure, which already has the approval of the senate, must be returned to that body, however, for concurrence in amendments, before it is presented to the chief executive.

While senate leaders, who have been pushing the measure in the upper house said they would not concur in an amendment by Rep. David Crowe (R) of Lawrence county, indications were it would not take the conferees long to iron out the wrinkles.

Difference On Licenses
The Crowe amendment would compel brewers who wish to sell beer to obtain two licenses of $1,000 each. As originally presented to the house, a brewer could manufacture and distribute brew under the one license fee of $1,000.

The emergency clause over which considerable apprehension was felt, received a larger vote than the bill. One hundred members voted to make the bill effective immediately on its signing, while only 29 voted against.

The same 29 who opposed the emergency section, stuck by their guns and voted against the bill itself. They were joined by five others.

As the measure now stands, draught beer may be sold in hotels, restaurants, clubs or amusement parks. Bottled brew may be sold in grocery stores and the like, but not for consumption on the premises.

Brewers making less than 5,000 barrels a month will be required to pay a license fee of $1,000, with an additional tax of 5 cents a barrel on all over 5,000 barrels made in any one month.

Steins and Bottles
In places where "steins" are passed around tables, the license fee will be $100 a year, while those for retailers of beer in bottles will be $50 annually.

Rep. Forest W. Hall (R) of Guernsey county, a Methodist minister, bore the brunt of the fight against the bill. Cheers greeted Mr. Hall's statement that "liquor has killed more people than bullets."

During Mr. Hall's attack, Mrs. Della Slagle (R) of Mahoning county, took the floor to criticize members of the house and gallery for "ungovernable conduct."

Rep. Horace Keifer (R) of Clark county, who heretofore has voted "dry," and who voted for the bill, expressed the opinion that "it would do more harm than good to try and enforce it (prohibition) if you don't have public sentiment for it. We don't have this now."

Harter Plan Fails
Amendments from the Democratic side of the house had little more success than those from the minority side. An effort by Rep. George Harter (D) of Summit county to reduce the control commission's personnel from seven to three, prohibition and permit counties to set up licensing boards, was voted down. A similar amendment, also was defeated by the senate.

Rep. James M. Guyer (R) of Hancock county, a minister, who voted against the measure, declared he would "rather have a so-called evil regulated than an evil unbridled."

Minority Floor Leader Charles H. Jones of Jackson county wound up the debate by pointing out that Ohio would be surrounded with states where beer was legal and whether they voted for the bill or not, there would be beer in Ohio, but it would be unregulated.

White to Appoint Liquor Board Soon

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, March 30.—The new state liquor control commission, which will handle licensing of dealers in 3.2 per cent beer, will be named by Governor George White "as soon as possible."

The executive, in disclosing this fact today, said he had received 46 applications from persons who want to serve on the commission.

He asserted that the state prohibition department would continue to function as usual, and that the beer commission will cooperate with it in enforcing the law against "hard liquor" and beer containing more than 3.2 per cent alcohol by weight.

Suppose the staff don't take like we think it will!
Yours,
Will Rogers

"NEITHER ETHICAL OR HONEST"

President Roosevelt's countrymen believe he will succeed in curbing agencies distributing securities, for two reasons. First, they have faith in the President's sincerity. They are sure he means to make it virtually impossible for the money power to victimize investors. The second reason lies in the evident incapability of that money power to resist imposition of restrictions at this time. Temporarily, at least, it is helpless. Instead of running the government, it is wondering whether it would be advisable to run from the government. The bank collapse and various signs of stupidity and dishonesty among formerly accredited financiers have taken away their prestige.

They, themselves, are calling for reform. The net effect of giving them plenty of rope in recent years has been a public hanging which has shocked the country into realization of what has been happening. When a president of the United States can declare in a public message that the public has sustained "severe losses through practices neither ethical or honest" and get away with it, there can be no doubt that Wall Street has abdicated from its monarchical position. It is not dictating to the government now; it is taking dictation.

Whatever measures of control the administration may place in effect over investment, they will represent only a part of the entire program of control over those who are given the use of other people's money. Later, the President promises restrictions over banks and corporations and the stock exchange, which boasts that it is its own best ruler. Complete supervision to prevent investors from being victimized by men shrewder than themselves is the goal.

Those who are to be protected, also, have a function in the reform movement that is under way. Their own good judgment and caution are matters which cannot be controlled by legislation, but by common sense. With so much of the evidence of rapacious practice before them, it is to be hoped that, with the aid of restrictions, they will offer less temptation to continued misuse of the money power in the future.

REFORMATION

There is a challenge to imagination in possibilities of the policy which President Roosevelt has inaugurated in the reformation bill, fourth of his measures to sweep through congress. Between that which is provided in the bill and that which might be provided in similar bills of the future there is a fairland of speculation.

No patriot can fail to be stirred by the vision of a country in which careful planning would provide for the needs of both the present and future. No reasonable person can be indifferent to the logic of conservation policies which would guarantee continuance of at least some of the resources whose abundance has made this the richest nation in the world. Such things as these are suggested in the reformation bill.

It is only a beginning. Like many a vital policy, its identity is obscured in infancy by another name. Reformation on a greater scale than has been authorized heretofore is not being projected for the sake of increasing the national wealth, but for the purpose of making work for jobless Americans. Once more, necessity has been mother to an invention which may be hailed in the future as a milestone of national policy.

Unfortunately, politicians are not permitted to enjoy in abundance the delights of identification with broad, social policies. Even where they possess the necessary vision, they are hampered by the necessity of dealing strenuously with the immediate problems of their times. Whatever progress they make toward the welfare of future generations must be arranged for among the details of caring for the present generation. It is small wonder that so few of them succeed in earning the gratitude of those who live after them.

In the reformation program, modest and restrained as it necessarily is, President Roosevelt has an opportunity to initiate a long-time program whose success would entitle him to a place among the greater presidents who have dared successfully to project themselves in imagination beyond their time. It is an example of vision which is appreciated by thoughtful Americans. It was time that this wealthy nation gave thought to the inevitable day when abundance will be destroyed by wanton waste.

OUR READERS

VOLSTEAD AND BEER

Editor, The News:
I can not understand why all the fuss of our law makers in Columbus regarding the repeal of our state dry laws, so our poor beer drinkers can partake of our new beer and two-tenths per cent beer congress has given us. Nothing has been changed since Andy Volstead made his famous or infamous law of one half of one per cent. All our new congress did was to raise Volstead a few points up to three and two-tenths.

Now as far as congress goes this new beer is not an intoxicant, and every state in the Union has a perfect lawful right to sell this beer, without repealing any state dry laws. They have the same right to sell this beer, as they have to sell pool, ginger ale, or root beer.

Our eighteenth amendment only treats on intoxicating liquors, and congress in making this new law, or making a new amendment to the old one gives us all the legal right to sell and buy three and two-tenths per cent beer. It is useless and unnecessary for our officials at Columbus to rush through any repeal of the Crable law, or any other dry law. The Crable law only covers intoxicating liquors, so why be in such a hurry?

If the United States supreme court declare this new beer to be an intoxicant, then it is unlawful and contrary to the eighteenth amendment. The only lawful way we can have real beer, and other liquors is to repeal the eighteenth amendment, then congress can make a law covering all liquors, and it would be legal. I am anxious to see how the supreme court will react to the new law, when, thirteen years ago the proclaimed, to all of us that, in their estimation everything over one half of one percent was intoxicating, and unlawful under the constitution.

The Stars Say—

For Friday, March 31

The planetary configurations bearing rule on the affairs of this day are particularly favorable to those in employment or in industry, labor, or those concerned with real estate, tenancies, agriculture or mining. These should thrive possibly after a long period of stagnation and bafflement. Nevertheless there is need of great precaution against trickery, deception, fraud and secret opposition and for discretion and conservatism in the matter of speculation or doubtful investments.

Those whose birthday it is in the employ of others may look for advancement or favors, and those in land, property, agriculture or mining interests may find things progressing from stagnant and congested conditions. But be careful with uncertain investments and manner of chance proposals and loans. Elders may give assistance. A child born on this day should be steady, hard working and dependable, winning recognition and help from elders and employers. They should shun all financial uncertainties.

Notable nativity: Pius XI, Roman pontiff.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE.

NEW YORK, March 29.—Perhaps the most elaborate playroom of the moment in town has been rigged up by Bob Winans, husband of Katherine Brush, for her son, Tommy, who is now the guest of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Brush, South Lincoln ave., in Salem, Ohio. Mr. Winans acquired an enormous north-lighted studio, adjoining his cooperative apartment in the Sutton Place area.

While interior decorators are working out details of outfitting it as a studio for Miss Brush, her husband transferred a toy electric train with several yards of track to one of the rooms. The vacant apartment suggested expansion of the idea.

More tracks were laid. More trains—freight and passenger—acquired. Tunnels were built, along with grade crossings and sidings. Soon the entire apartment became a tangle of tracks, signal towers and imposing stations, with a central control board. Thus, an operator may send trains in all directions.

They shoot down halls, are switched off into the kitchen, bedrooms, up and down inclines and so on. While originally devised for juvenile appeal, a visit by grown-ups keeps them there the rest of the evening. And, of course, some old dry invariably, and playfully, maneuvers a head-on collision.

H. T. Webster, Herb Roth and Milt Gross occupy a studio high up in the Chrysler building, where they turn out their creations. During a tedious, one day each drew a sketch on the wall. Other artists, dropping in, also offered contributions, and now and then an European lummer, such as Sem of Paris or Tom Webster of London, added to the galaxy. As a result, the walls are now almost covered with hastily drawn bits that, if detached, would be worth something to collectors.

Browne's chop house, in other years, had the most complete collection of autographed pictures of celebrities. Ben Riley likely has, today, the widest range, in the halls of Arrowhead Inn. Diamond Jim Brady was a collector of autographed stage pictures, too, and the finest array of snapshots, kodaked in person, are those of Bert Levy, who has pictures of practically every performer of 20 years ago, snapped informally in their dressing rooms in all parts of the world.

In preparing the banal for Buff Cobb Brody's new novel, "See Saw," to be serialized in a magazine, the ad writers sought her father for suggestions. They thought it might be a good idea to run a picture of Cobb and wanted him to write a line under it. He dashed off: "Modesty note by I. Cobb—I do not know where I got my genius but it is quite evident where my daughter got her's." This is Mrs. Brody's third novel, the first, "Falling Seeds," the second, "Minstrels in Satin."

With all the predictions that several New York bankers are slated for a few years of free hair-cuts, I'm hoping one cullion in especial is given that muletailed trim so popular down on the border. He'd look too cute.

Overheard in Harlem: "Does that new society funeralize its members?"

The ultimate in restraint is recorded by the pacifist, in a story Don Marquis related at the Players, who spoke of the World was as "the recent crossness."

Mrs. William Anthony McGuire is on the warpath for the scalp of a perfume purveyor. A supply of her favorite scent, a Christmas gift from her husband, vanished after an afternoon tea. She suspects it is a joke, but, unconsciously and surreptitiously, she sniffs all friends.

Thingumabobs: Ballard MacDonald, song writer, is preparing to leave with his family for a permanent stay in the South Seas.

Tippy Gray, globe trotting sportsman, has 200 sweaters. . . Carl Van Vechten's hobby, like that of Bob Davis, is photographing his friends.

Mrs. Blair Niles, who gives such polite teas in her East 49th street apartment, has lived among head-bunting dyaks and criminals of Devil's Island. . . Oliver Herford, famous English-born humorist, is an alumnus of Antioch, O., college.

Florence Ryerson, who dashes off a ribald poem now and then, is the most domesticated of the Beverly Hills celebrity set.

Telegram: "What instructions about that dinner for you tonight?"

None. Just don't forget the oil cloth at my plate.

Time for Hay Fever Treatments
We are approaching the time of year when cases of hay fever are all too common. It is a disease most prevalent during the spring and summer. It is a disagreeable ailment, yet nobody but its victims really appreciate the misery it causes.

Hay fever is often confused with asthma. As a matter of fact, it is sometimes difficult to distinguish between the two conditions. About one-third of the afflicted persons experience asthmatic attacks in conjunction with their hay fever.

In some instances, the disease is brought on by a peculiar sensitivity of the individual to the pollens of certain trees, grasses and ragweeds. Based on these causes, three types of hay fever are described. They are known as "spring," "summer" and "fall" hay fever.

Symptoms Vary
In every type there are marked itching and congestion of the eyes. The sufferer has violent spasms of sneezing, annoying and embarrassing. There is a thin, irritating discharge from the nose, which may be profuse and persistent. The symptoms vary in intensity throughout the day, but are usually worse in the morning.

One form of hay fever occurs throughout the year. This is called "perennial hay fever." It is caused by sensitivity to the skin scales of animals, to vegetable powders, house dust, foods or drugs. The symptoms of this form of hay fever are the same as are observed in the other forms.

Within recent years great progress has been made in the treatment and cure of hay fever. The specific cause of some attacks is determined by testing the patient with various pollens or other disturbing substances to which he may be exposed. There are two methods of making these tests: One is the external skin test. The other is the intradermal test, in which an injection is made into the skin.

Seeking the Cause
The cautious test is simple and most frequently used. It consists of a series of small scratches made on the inner surface of the forearm. Each is about a quarter of an inch long and the scratches are placed about an inch apart. Different extracts are placed upon the scratched surfaces. If the patient is sensitive to a particular pollen, or other substance, within fifteen minutes a local reaction occurs on the scratch mark. A "wheel," or swelling is produced, surrounded by a reddish area. It resembles the redness and swelling following an insect bite.

Value of Vaccines
When the cause of the sensitivity is determined, relief can be obtained by the injection of the indicated vaccine. This is given by injection and, as a rule, a minimum of fifteen injections are required to give relief.

This treatment can only be given under the supervision of a physician. It is necessary for a trained eye to watch for certain reactions that may occur. The treatment may be started at any time of the year. Best results are obtained when the injections are given just before the hay fever season.

Often the immunity or protection produced by these injections is only sufficient to carry the patient through one season. The course of treatment must be repeated during the next winter or spring. It is hoped that within a short time the vaccines may be so perfected as to give complete and everlasting immunity.

"SALEM MEASURE ILLEGAL"—SCOTT

Solicitor Rules that State Statutes Will Nullify Local Ordinance

While such a step, in his opinion, is not absolutely necessary, Scott said today that he will confer with Charles D. Baker, president of city council, concerning the repeal of the city ordinance and the enactment of legislation to coincide with the new beer statute.

The matter he plans to place before President Baker some time previous to council's regular meeting next Tuesday night when, he said, the beer situation as it concerns Salem will probably be discussed in detail.

Similar to Other Opinions
Scott's opinion is similar to that arrived at by the majority of Ohio solicitors who have ruled that the state law will supersede municipal measures. The situation, however, has caused plenty of legal headaches with some attorneys stating that city ordinances must be repealed before municipalities can legally sell the new beer.

The city ordinances were patterned to conform with the state Crabb act to permit municipalities to make arrests on liquor charges and place money obtained from fines and costs into the city treasury.

The situation, however, has caused plenty of legal headaches with some attorneys stating that city ordinances must be repealed before municipalities can legally sell the new beer.

The city ordinances were patterned to conform with the state Crabb act to permit municipalities to make arrests on liquor charges and place money obtained from fines and costs into the city treasury.

Scott's opinion is similar to that arrived at by the majority of Ohio solicitors who have ruled that the state law will supersede municipal measures. # New York Yanks Big Favorites To Win American League Title

McCarthy All Set for Campaign; Rookies Aid Pennant Hopes

BY ALAN GOULD

Associated Press Sports Editor

Despite the fact they face much stronger opposition all along the American league line this year, especially from Washington, the New York Yanks still have large and abundant quantities of the stuff that makes them the outstanding club in baseball.

Johnny Allen, their freshman pitcher, in 1932, has not rounded into form and seems unlikely to duplicate his feat of winning 17 games but the wealth of available pitching talent includes a big fellow who may do even better, Don Brennan, up from the Newark "farm" and all ready for a regular job.

The Babe himself, no longer is a greyhound on the defense and Manager Joe McCarthy may not have decided yet who will start the season at shortstop, but consider the embarrassment of the Yankees pilot in these circumstances. He has two of the greatest young outfielders anywhere in sight, Sam Byrd and Fred Walker, both straining at the leash if Ruth shows the least sign of needing an understudy.

He has three shortstops, any one of whom would be welcomed on most other big league clubs, and the task of deciding whether Bill Werber has come along fast enough this spring to displace Frankie Crosetti or Lynn Larry, 1932 alter-nates.

In this predicament, it is small wonder that the Yankees are 2 to 1 favorites to win the pennant again, even though Washington is conceding nothing and the other clubs are hoping mostly for the "breaks."

In the two vital elements of baseball supremacy, power and pitching, the Yankees have nothing to worry about. Now that Connie Mack has broken up the Simmons-Fox combination on the Athletics, there is no two-ply powerhouse anywhere to compare with Ruth and Gehrig.

No Batting Weaknesses

Combs, Sewell, Lazzeri, Dickey and Chapman all carry enough wallop to originate or join typical Yankee slugfests. No matter who plays shortstop and if Red Ruffing is pitching, there is no soft spot anywhere in the batting order.

There isn't much chance for a pitching recruit who didn't have enough stuff to post 20 victories or more in minor league company. Jimmy Doherty only won 19 for Sacramento in the Pacific Coast league, but McCarthy probably will overlook this and keep the young right-hander who once tried out with the Athletics. Don Brennan captured 26 games for Newark and Russell Van Atta, southpaw addition from St. Paul, won 23 in the American Association, thereby qualifying.

Probable Starting Staff

The starting staff again will be built around Ruffing, the Nokomis (left) right hander, and Vernon (left) Gomez, the accomplished southpaw. Together they won 42 games last year and should come close to that figure again. George Pipgras and Johnny Allen may have to hustle to keep their regular jobs, but Brennan, Van Atta, Doherty, Big Walter Brown and Danny MacFayden anxious for steady employment.

Herb Pennock and Wilcy Moore are past masters at the art of mopping up. Charley Devens, Harvard alumnus, was originally ticketed for a season in Newark, but he has developed so fast that McCarthy may keep him with the varsity.

There is no question about the lineup, including Bill Dickey, behind the bat, barring accident or suspension. Gehrig, Lazzeri and Sewell are set at their infield posts, as are Combs and Chapman in the outfield.

MAHONING MEET SET FOR MAY 6

Canfield Fair Grounds To Be Scene of Annual Track, Field Event

CANFIELD, March 30.—The 21st annual Mahoning county scholastic track and field meet will be held at the Canfield fair grounds Saturday, May 6. Announcement to this effect was made today by Michael Fiske, of Canfield, secretary of the county association.

The school officials agreed to confine the affair, which includes both high school and grade events to a single afternoon, starting at 1 o'clock.

With Boardman, perennial champion, graduated to Class A ranks this year, the meet is expected to prove a wide-open affair. Canfield won the grade title last year.

There was some talk of suspending the meet this year, but a majority of the schools voted to continue. The meet started in 1913 with G. M. Barton, of Poland high, president of the association, the instigator of the annual event.

From Southern Camps

NEW ORLEANS, March 30.—With three of Cleveland's five regular pitchers proved ready, Manager Roger Peckinpaugh today called on Wesley Ferrell and Mel Harder to test themselves against the New Orleans Braves. Both are underweight and the Indian pilot consequently is dubious about their fitness.

Oral Hildebrand, the lean Hoosier, got his O. K. yesterday when he held the Pelicans to four hits and no runs in six innings. Willis Hudlin and Clint Brown previously had turned in performances that showed them ready for the season's opener.

ORLANDO.—Walter Brown, Adonis of the Boston Red Sox pitching staff, has been chosen to twirl against his former teammates, the Montreal Royals, as the Sox stop off today for the first game on their long trek home.

And the Royals are managed by Walter "Doc" Gautreau, former Boston Braves second baseman, whose salesmanship made it possible for Brown to become a member of the Red Sox this season.

ST. PETERSBURG.—The Boston Braves came back to camp today after a sojourn in Bradenton to take on the Newark club of the International league. They were all pepped up over their yesterday's 12 to 3 win over St. Louis.

It was their first game against a minor league team, but Manager McKee warned his boys against being too optimistic—Newark being rated as strong as a number of major league clubs.

TAMPA.—Not at all pleased by the way Cincinnati's Reds were slaughtered by the Yankees and Boston

Reds, Manager Donie Bush set out today to give his charges "the works" in the form of practice.

Bush has two days to work on the team before they take on the Boston Braves Saturday and Sunday and then head north. He feels Joe Morrissey had added considerable strength to the infield and looks upon him as the regular third baseman. The Reds returned to early season form yesterday and defeated the Phillies, 8 to 4.

Star Injured

HAZEN (KIKI) CUYLER, CUBS' RIGHT FIELDER

(By Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, March 30.—Chicago's chances of retaining the National League pennant received a severe blow Wednesday when Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler, one of the leading outfielders in the senior circuit, suffered a fracture of his right leg while attempting to steal second base in an exhibition game with Hollywood.

The accident happened in the fourth inning of the contest, which the Cubs won, 10 to 3. Kiki hesitated a moment as he approached the bag and then decided to hit the dirt. He was half a step too late in his decision and his foot caught in the bag, giving him a sharp twist.

He was carried from the field.

Examination at the Cedars of the lower end of the fibula, the Lebanon hospital showed what doctors termed a "comminuted fracture" of the bone three inches in length had been severed from the main bone.

Hurls No-Hit Game, But Loses Verdict

(By International News Service)

SACRAMENTO, Calif., March 30.—Breaking into professional ball with a no-hit game and losing it is just about the toughest baptism a young rookie could encounter. But that's just the way Joe Noonan, who is getting a trial with the Sacramento Solons, was introduced to the game.

Making his maiden appearance with Danville of the Three-I league on June 21 last summer, Noonan uncorked a never-to-be-forgotten masterpiece against the Decatur Commodies. A base on balls, followed by a stolen base, a wild pitch and an error, gave Decatur a run and a 1 to 0 victory. Not a sign of a hit was registered off Noonan's delivery.

ALLIANCE MEETS N. CASTLE FIVE

Sachsen League Foes To Clash For Title At Salem High Gym

A post-season clash between New Castle, Pa., and Alliance, rivals for the Penn-Ohio league basketball championship, will be the attraction at the Salem high school gymnasium Saturday night.

Now tied for the league crown the two foes collide on the Quaker gymnasium to settle the titular dispute, marking the final bit of basketball entertainment slated here this spring.

Alliance, seeking the 1933 title, is at the same time defending the championship attained during the 1932 campaign. Salem Sachsen, who withdrew from the circuit after the latter season, held the title in 1929, 1930 and 1931.

A large audience of fans is expected to witness the battle which will be followed by a dance at the Sachsenheim, Railroad st.

Salem Sachsen lassies, entered in the Penn-Ohio league as representing Alliance, will meet Youngstown Sachsen in the preliminary attraction.

100 Yards in Nine Seconds Predicted by Veteran Coach

BY IRA M. MOHLER
International News Service
Sports Writer

DETROIT, Mich., March 30.—One hundred yards in nine seconds!

Some sprinter will do it, but it may not be for a great many years yet, in the opinion of Michael H. ("Dad") Butler, veteran track coach and trainer at the University of Detroit.

"Dad" has seen all of the great sprinters of the last 45 years in action and has seen the amateur record for the century dash drop from 19 seconds flat, established in 1888, to its present mark of 9.4 seconds.

He bases his prediction on the showing of Yoshoka, Japan's great sprinter, in the 1932 Olympiad at Los Angeles.

"In each of Yoshoka's heats he led the best sprinters in the world by two or three yards for the first 60 yards. If he had had the strength and endurance to continue at his great speed, he would set unbelievable records," Dad declared.

"It is only a question of time, in my opinion, until the boy will be developed who will set such an astounding record."

The veteran Detroit trainer credits Mike Murphy, Yale's coach, with introducing the crouching style for the start of the dash events and Charles H. Sherrill, of Yale, with using the style in competition.

TODAY'S RADIO PROGRAMS

Figuring that beer control legislation will not be in effect in New York state in time, broadcasts of the celebration of the return of the 32 brew will center in the middle west.

Already WABC-CBS has arranged to put Chicago, St. Louis and Milwaukee on the air late on the night of April 6, to vocalize what happens. Night clubs and breweries will be some of the originating points. NBC has not yet announced its plans for that night.

Described as a laboratory demonstration in ultra-modern rhythm, referred to by musicians as "back to rhythm," a special program by the three X sisters will be put on the WJZ-NBC microphone Sunday night in illustration of their methods of producing music in voice. Despite the announced cancellation, the second of the series of Hawaiian sketches from Honolulu via WABC-NBC will be presented Saturday night.

THE WORLD COURT.
A RIDE IN THE AIR.
ECONOMY AND WASTE.

By Arthur Brisbane

MIAMI, Fla.—The usual run of news includes the bad news that the Democratic administration will try to force the United States into the world court. President Roosevelt should prevent that. Thus far he has not indicated that he needs anybody in Europe or any foreign court to tell him what to do.

The world court is a back door to the league of nations. Japan, with good sense, has just walked out the front door. It would seem rather weak and feeble for this country to creep into the back door now.

If we go into the league of nations we shall be more or less subject to judges appointed by foreign countries, outnumbering us 10 to one. And we know now what their judgement would be in matters affecting the United States.

NOW turn from unpleasant possibilities, and look at something agreeable, this southern part of Florida, seen from the air, tomato fields, long roads, canals, sharks, sting-rays and turtles, and other interesting things.

One of Mr. Littlefield's nonrigid dirigibles, Reliance, built by the Goodyear company, raises you and half a dozen others from the smooth surface of the causeway that connects Miami with Miami Beach.

First the ship goes west, toward the Everglades, over the Miami sky-scrapers, across the Miami river that winds up toward Lake Okechobee, where they catch the big gar fish. A canal connects river and lake.

YOU study black roofs of houses, long roads that wind through real estate developments. Here and there miles of sidewalks, expensively laid, too far from the center, now overgrown with weeds. You see big buildings, erected without reason, windows broken, unnecessary cupolas falling down. It is sad reflection of the burst boom, which in time will come back stronger than ever.

You fly over wide expanses that look like soft, thick green carpet. Those carpets are tomato farms. Growers south of Miami ship 70 cars a day to New York. In corners of fields, you occasionally see great piles of bright red tomatoes—the "cull" piles. Tomatoes perfectly good, ripe, sound, not quite big enough for New York's market, are thrown away, thousands of bushels. Such is our system of economy, combined with expensive distribution.

The tomatoes, wasted joyously ripe, would provide tomato juice with life-giving vitamins for tens of thousands of poor children, orphan asylums and poor homes.

OFF "Virginia Key," just north of Florida Island, you see amazing schools of sharks, and floating among them, a pale-colored jellyfish, a mass of aimless, but living protoplasm at least 15 feet in diameter. Then comes Fishers' island, property of William K. Vanderbilt, who "parks" his big yacht beside it and lives ashore when in these waters. He has given part of the island to the government for a quarantine station.

The Reliance sails along at 45 miles an hour, cruising speed, and Miami skyscrapers come in sight. You turn from north to west, over Miami beach. Little colored specks below, looking like ants, human beings getting their sun baths and actinic rays, are much less interesting than the free sharks, sting-rays and barracuda that you have left behind in the shallow green waters.

Dunn, Eilers in Coming Film; Stanwyck Feature Ends Run

THE "bad girl" of the films and her smiling boy-friend, Sally Eilers and Jimmy Dunn, will be seen in their latest co-starring vehicle—"Sailor's Luck" Friday and Saturday at the State theater. It is their fourth effort as a team, and a notable addition to their list of past successes.

Good Supporting Cast
In support of the two young stars will be seen Victor Jory, who was seen as the operator of the hoop concession in "State Fair" and also in "Second Hand Wife" and "Handle With Care." Sammy Cohen, a fine comedian, little Buster Phelps who played so very well in "Handle With Care," Lucien Littlefield and Frank Atkinson.

It is the story of a carefree sailor in the United States navy, who suddenly and much to his own surprise finds himself in love with one girl. They meet quite accidentally as is the usual case with a "gob" and a girl, and from then on the action is said to be most hilarious.

Dunn resents the attentions paid to Miss Eilers by other men and as a result all they do is quarrel.

Things Finally Straightened
After misunderstandings that separate them, a marathon dance in which Sally enters to forget her troubles with Jimmy, a fight with Jimmy as the chief contestant and plenty of excitement, the two are reunited.

A fine supporting cast should help make this film entertaining.

A replica of the woman's section of San Quentin prison, California, was constructed on the Warner Brothers lot in North Hollywood for the production, "Ladies They Talk About" the Barbara Stanwyck starring film, now playing at the State theater.

Attractive Dresses For Every Hour of the Day Observe Their Own Definite Rules for Chicness

Spring Dresses Have a Variety of Ways of Achieving Their Smartness Tremendous Fabric Interest Plus Chic of Line and Beauty of Color Are Seen for 1933

Spring is knocking at the door and with it comes the usual number of charming new fashions. Only this year there are more types, and they are far more charming than have been seen in many springs. Since women have begun to dress up more and to take advantage of every occasion that presents itself to wear these utterly delightful five o'clock dresses, dresses have divided themselves into four distinct classes. When one shops for frocks in this day and age, it is either for a daytime dress, an afternoon frock, a dinner dress or an evening gown. The four types are distinctly different and present a most interesting picture.

THE DAYTIME MODE
There are so many charming models in which to start the day that every woman will be able to find just the type of dress she has always wanted this spring. There are countless print dresses, in tiny tailored patterns, or large splash effects that are somehow just as business-like as the smart young executive would demand. Many of them have their own little jacket or cape which is detachable showing a smart dress beneath. There are almost as many long sleeve models as there are short, but all sleeves have some note of interest, shirring, pleating or puffing.

BLACK AND WHITE
It is interesting to note that many designers have shown a definite preference for black and white for the daytime mode. Black, white, crepe, black, matelasses, black heavy sheers and even some black flat crepes which haven't been seen for some time. The touch of white is achieved in various ways, smartest of which is the lingerie touch which is always popular. But besides the simple lingerie effects, there are models showing dainty ruching at the neckline and on the sleeves. There are quaint, feminine collars in flower-like lines. These are made of organdy, net and mousseline de soie. While these are very youthful trims, they are the type that will appeal to dowagers as well as youthful women. From a standpoint of practicality, these touches of white are perfect, for in almost every case, the materials used are those that do not muss easily, and that are simple to launder.

LIGHT SHADES FOR AFTER-NOON
Whatever else they may be doing, afternoon frocks are keeping light and gay. It is interesting to note the amount of beige that has crept into the spring picture. This color with gray, are the two neutrals that smart women are acclaiming as spring's smartest shades. Hyacinth blue touches the blue note in fashion's scale. Dawn blue is a new shade that is most becoming and easy to wear.

The silhouette of all dresses, in every mode including the afternoon, is slim and straight, so much so that in many cases designers have had to rack their creative brains to find the smart way of giving skirts enough fullness to make walking comfortable, without losing the chic of the very straight silhouette. One of the newest and smartest ways that is being used is cartridge pleats. Designers have been quick to take advantage of this method of controlling fullness, and it looks delightfully new as it is a fashion that has not been light of day for many years. Many years ago Lou-iseboulanger introduced the dress with cartridge pleats at the hips, and it became a tremendous influence on fashions of the day. There is something reminiscent of Louiseboulanger in the pleats used in today's dresses, especially in the evening mode.

These pleats are not confined to skirts, however. They are used especially smartly in the afternoon mode, in sleeves where they are arranged to give a drop-shoulder line with the fullness released below the shoulder. Where cartridge pleats are not employed, many afternoon frocks show simple, little tailored pleats both front and back to give the necessary freedom in skirts. Some of these are unpressed and give the frock an especially interesting look.

SHEERS FOR DINING
Sheer fabrics have taken a great hold for the dinner type and "five o'clock" type of dress. Not only are they popular for their sheer beauty, but because they are so easy to pack, taking up very little space in the traveling case, and because they do not muss easily. Since there are always women who are always going somewhere, dresses of this type are certain to be happily welcomed.

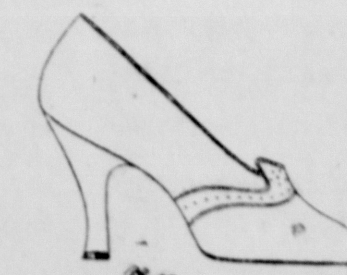

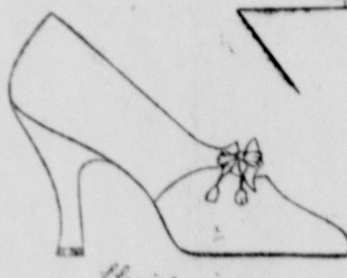

Printed sheers are especially delightful. There are lovely pale designs done on soft backgrounds that would be perfect in the smartest of restaurants. Then there are black chiffons, back again and more dramatic and appealing than ever. Many of them have capelets or little jackets. When these are removed they become suitable for formal evening wear. This type of sheer double duty dress is scheduled to win many laurels this spring and summer. Boas and flower necklines are seen on these chiffons, smartly reminiscent of an earlier day when femininity was the fashion as it is today. Gray chiffon is also making a bid for popularity. One model is especially charming, made in long flowing lines, with a capelet that ties at the front where a huge scarlet rose is placed. The red with gray makes a striking contrast that would turn any dull evening into a memorable one.

A GLAMOROUS MODE FOR NIGHT
The really grand thing about evening gowns this spring is that they really look as if they were made to go to parties. They have been fashioned for gaiety, and their graceful flowing lines were just meant to glide across a ballroom floor. There is no fashion quite so refreshing or as youthful as the evening gown of mousseline de soie or starched organdy.

Men's Shoes Give Favor to Custom and French Styles

That there is plenty of opportunity to gratify individual preference in the selection of shoes for spring is evidenced in the interest and variety of the styles, newly launched. The colors, as well, as comprehensive in scope, stressing, as they do, the importance of brown in an inclusive range of shades with black of minor importance but still a factor to be reckoned with.

For general wear the custom last with its pointed toe was in importance with shoes built on the French last. Because of the broader toe that typifies this type of shoe, many men will choose them for their undoubted ease and comfort.

Some of the shoes are extremely simple, depending upon perfection of line for their appeal, while others employ a liberal use of decorative perforations for ornament.

THE SPORTS SHOE COMES INTO PROMINENCE

As spring advances to summer the sports shoe comes into its own. And every indication points to greater popularity for this type of shoe than ever before. Light weight suits in both wool and cotton are certain to be of major importance, and the sports shoe is the logical choice to wear with this type of apparel for general service as well as for active sports.

White stands out as a particular favorite and there are a selection of models in wing tip or plain styles. Many are heavily trimmed with perforated designs. These shoes are developed in buckskin.

While the black and white shoe is still featured it has more or less taken second place in favor of the combination of brown and white. The advancing season will find sports shoes of white buckskin with wing tip and heel toms in brown calf of greater and greater importance. And it is logical that this should be so as brown is always a favorite spring and summer shoe color and it is never more effective than when used in combination with white.

A number of shoes in lighter colors are presented—they will appeal especially to men who stress comfort in footwear above all else. Shoes of this type are certain to be cool and for this reason are an ideal choice for warm weather wear. However, for general service and for active sports shoes of the more typical designs described above are bound to be first in volume for spring and summer wear.

MILTON, Ore.—Bands of elk in the foothills some ten miles from here are raising such havoc with crops and fences that farmers of this region have bombarded the state game commission with pleas for relief. One band of over 100 was counted recently in a fenced-in pasture.

THE HOME KITCHEN

A HOT BREAD "BANQUET" And Here's a Tested Recipe for Tasty Corn Sticks

Hot breads! What a beautiful addition to any meal and what a grand thing to be able to place before your family or guests. Why, even the simplest, whipped-together-in-a-hurry meal becomes a positive banquet when you can dash out into the kitchen and whip up a batch of hot bread.

Of course we all have our favorites, but it is certain that corn sticks are about as tasty and popular as any member of the hot-bread family. But we have had lots of letters, regretfully reporting dire failure with corn sticks, that there were soggy and heavy sticks in the batch despite all the care taken to keep them light and fluffy. And so in answer to these complaints we are giving a new recipe that is guaranteed to insure success.

Use Cracker Meal
There is a secret to the recipe. It involves the use of cracker meal instead of flour. Cracker meal makes the corn sticks different, just as it does lots of dishes. They are far lighter and drier than when flour holds the meal together. Then, too, the mixture is of such a consistency that it can be rolled between the hands and shaped into sticks, should your kitchen lack a regular corn stick baking pan.

Mix together one cup yellow corn meal, half a cup cracker meal, one teaspoon baking powder, quarter teaspoon salt, and one-eighth of a teaspoon of sugar. One egg lightly beaten, quarter cup melted butter and two-thirds of a cup of milk. Mix well. Shape into sticks and bake on a greased baking sheet in a hot oven for 10-15 minutes. This should serve six, four small sticks to each serving.

Straws of Fabric-Like Material Will Top the 1933 Millinery Mode

See New Interest In Varied Fabrics

GREAT DIVERSITY IN WEAVES AND TYPES
The fabric story for spring is made up of many chapters, each one more interesting than the next. There are brand new fabrics and there are revivals of old favorites that will be most welcome.

MATÉLASSE WEAVES IMPORTANT
The matelassé, or cloqué weave has quickly become the leading fabric influence. Starting in all respects, it was an imitator of the quilt. No longer, we see it no longer in a quilt, but in cottons, an even in woollens where it is most effective.

STIFFENED FABRICS
The evening mode is sponsoring the new fashion for stiffened materials. Starched organza, stiffened muscadine, de sole, starched net and lace. They are delightful, and not impractical as they might seem on first glance. For most of these fabrics are so woven that they do not lose their stiffness. Taffeta would also come under this category, and it is being seen much in the evening and in pert little blouses and scarfs.

REVIVING CHIFFON
The revival of the smartness of chiffon will be welcome news to these women who have always loved it. It is being developed in many airy gowns for formal wear, and for dinner.

Attractive and Charming New Hats Will Expose Much Of the Hair and, of Course, Demand New Sleek Coiffure

Tiny ringlets have become an important fashion since many hats are worn high on the head exposing the hair at the neckline.

The wide, loose wave, swirled round the head is not only smart but really cared for. Not the bang. This is a new and important fashion.

Fashion Busv, Painting Her Spring Scenes With Livid, Glowing Colors

The color picture is complete using almost every shade on the palette. The brilliant flaming colors show plainly the Balinese influence. The warm rich colors inspired by this East Indian isle are seen principally influencing our accessory mode. Color is used for accent, and their glowing brightness is most effective.

The neutrals or the "naturals" in hosiery, smart women have been looking askance at their hosiery wardrobes when it was time to don the gray frock. Decidedly, the dark brownish shades were not quite right this spring, fashion is sponsoring a new shade, greige, an illusive color which is claimed by both the gray and the beige family. In reality, it is a cross between the two colors, and is equally smart when worn with either. The important thing about greige in hosiery is that it has solved the difficult problem for women about what to wear with gray.

THE SHADOW SHADES
The soft pastels have won a brand new name for themselves this season and so are slated for greater popularity than ever before. Many of this season's fashions have been directly influenced by that famous beauty of the mauve decade, Lily Langtry. The trends which she established and made famous are re-appearing, and the colors that she loved most are doing much for our fashion picture this spring. The soft pinks and blues, a lovely yellow and beige—in other words, elusive and lovely shadow shades. These colors that made Lily Langtry beautiful in days gone by are back again for the beauties of 1933.

WHAT ABOUT WHITE?
White as a note of accent is one of the most important trends. There is no fashion quite so refreshing as the dark frock, black or navy blue, with the lingerie touch of white. It is a smart fashion already to wear white hats with these dresses. Sometimes having the hat banded with the dark color of the dress. It is decidedly spring-like, and, of course, becoming to everyone. As the season advances, white promises to come into its own in frocks for the summer season. All white footwear was most important at winter resorts this past season, and it is bound to carry on for the summer season.

TWO TONES IMPORTANT
The use of two tones of one color has reached a stage of great import. It is sponsored not only in dresses, but also in coats. A smart coat model is developed in gray, with a lighter tone used for the yoke and scarf of the coat. Two piece frocks have been developed with the skirt of a lighter or darker shade of the same color, the newer trend being for the blouse to be of the darker shade with the skirt lighter.

GAY COMBINATIONS
Two colors are often used together to give a smart effect. One of the important spring combinations is blue with gray. One smart coat is developed in down blue crepe wool, with a detachable lei collar of gray fox. The two colors give a soft effect that is most effective. A surprising combination is that of gray with red of a brilliant tone. Many gray frocks are seen with belts of red leather, and often a red hat is worn to complete the costume. This fashion of gray with red is certain to appeal to youth because of its startling smartness.

CEGAR RAPIDS, Iowa.—Claiming to be the oldest hobo on the road—and looking it—John Sayres applied at the city jail here for food, lodging and a few more clothes. He was given all three and departed the next day. Sayres said he was a shoemaker, but someone had stolen his tools in Atlanta, Ga.

Sportswear Is Playing the Great Game of Fashion In Many Events

The ideal tenn's dress, of washable silk, made with sleeves that give plenty of arm freedom.

From the Sportswear Album, Active And Spectator Togs Distinctly 1933

Women on both sides of the sports line, the active and passive, are going to be grateful for what fashion has wrought in the spring picture. There are new versions of old favorites, and fashions that have just seen the light of day.

Rabbit's Hair Dresses
Among the fashions to carry on is the rabbit's hair woolen frock, done in light weight versions that are perfect under a coat for these first spring days. Later when Old Sol becomes more generous with his warmth, the coats will be shed and these dresses will be grand for sports and street.

Practical Sportswear
Designers this year have had their eyes on the practical side of life. Sports clothes are made to live in, to be comfortable in, and to be easily kept smart and fresh. There are countless tennis frocks in both cottons and silk, that may be tubbed as easily as a handkerchief. Some of the cottons in matelasse effects require no ironing, which will be a big point in their favor with vacationists in summer. They are simply laundered and stretched into shape.

Let Sports Be Unconfined
That is the motto for spring 1933. Whether clothes are for active or spectator sports, they are made to be comfortable. Sleeves are fashioned to give plenty of arm freedom. There are many divided skirts in the spring picture which will be the joy of the active sportswoman. There are little jackets to accompany frocks with little or no sleeves. Slip into them after your tennis game and you are presentable anywhere. There are capes that swing on and off in a jiffy with no intricate fastenings to worry you. All in all, the smartest sports clothes are made to play a winning game, with an added attraction of a jacket or cape to take you smartly to tea or a matinee afterward.

Cotton Topcoats Promised
Mannish fashions in feminine clothes have brought about a brand new interest in topcoats. Many of spring's smartest suits have their own separate topcoats, and these are certainly going to make their mark in the fashion world. When it comes time to put the tweeds away for cottons, the topcoat is still going to carry on. Many clever cotton frocks are being made with their own topcoats to match or contrast, and a smarter fashion than this cotton topcoat has never seen light of day.

For this purpose the wooly weave cottons are holding the stage. There are many different weaves, though all of them stress rough surfaces.

Checks promise to be the leader, with diagonals following. These two effects are especially smart in rough surface. Tweed effects make your coat look like a very fashionable English topcoat, and they are so delightfully cool and light, you can wear them all summer.

New Beach Togs Bring Bali Isle to Good Old U.S.A.

The romantic little Isle of Bali is showing its influence on the 1933 beach mode. Devotees of the sea and sand will wear scintillating bathing suits and more colorful and daring lounging clothes than they have ever worn before.

Bathing Suits Gay
Plaids, stripes and gay batik effects will be favored on the beach this summer by those fortunate young things of sufficiently small birth to wear them. The batik effect is an important new feature, and daringly low cut backs continue to hold first place in the fashion swim. In sharp contrast to the colorful note in bathing suits, is the fashion for gray on the beach. It is brand new and decidedly smart with bright beach accessories.

Beach Dresses vs. Slacks
Which you will wear while sunning is entirely up to you for both have fashion's sponsorship. There

Influence of Lily Langtry Decade Is Seen In Many of the New Fashions

The fashions of Lily Langtry that excited the ladies of decades past, live again to excite modern maidens of 1933. They are going to dress in accord with the tastes of La Langtry—in those fashions that made her the toast of the mauve decade.

The big sleeve, the double rows of metal buttons, the flower necklines, the alluring feather boas, all date back to the day of the lovely Lily of Victoria's day.

Lily Langtry was born Emille Charlotte Le Breton, on the Isle of Jersey. She married Edward Langtry and moved to London. From London she became the sensation of New York. Her mad-cap ways, her chic and charm captured the hearts of everyone with whom she came in contact, just as her lovely fashions are capturing the hearts of everyone who sees them and tries them on.

Huge Beach Hats
"The bigger the better" seems to be the motto for beach hats. They are great floppy things, the smartest of them with aquiline crown. Other beach accessories are going in for color in the Bali manner: glorious reds and flaming orange tones.

day, is attributed to her, as are many of the tiny, hair-exposing hats of the day.

Though the name of Lily Langtry is always linked with beauty, it was her charm that made her the reigning personality of her day. Today, just as then, it is the charm of these clothes that she sponsored, that makes them so absolutely lovely in every respect. They are feminine in a dainty or a tailored way. They are dainty in a soft, lady-like fashion. Always they have the appeal of chic and individuality for which well-dressed women have always striven.

There have been many famous beauties that fill the pages of our history books, but there have been none who have done quite so much for American women in the fashion sense. For the fashions that she designed, wore, and endorsed are those that will make the fashion picture for spring. Because of Lily Langtry, Spring, 1933, will prove picturesque, smartly fashionable season.

The Modern Living Room Breathes Colorful Charm, Warm Hospitality

There is a gracious air of "livable-ness" about that center of family life—the living room. It reflects tastes and preferences of those who occupy it, it extends a cordial invitation to comfort, ease and relaxation. Here the family gathers, here friends are entertained. So much is this room the heart of the home that too much thought and care cannot be expended in its furnishing. Notice that we said "thought and care"—money is the second consideration, paradoxical as this may seem.

All of us have seen rooms that fairly cried aloud of money but that were so utterly lacking in taste and that important "homey" quality that the impulse was to leave them as soon as possible. There have been other rooms whose charm lingered long in the memory—not because of the elaboration of their furnishings but because of the loving care that was apparent in the arrangement of every piece of furniture, the selection of the hangings, the wise disposal of the ornamental objects. It was apparent that every article had been chosen for its fitness to the others so that a quiet atmosphere of good taste prevailed.

This is surely the type of room that each of us visions when we set about planning the creation of a living room that shall be exactly that, in every sense of the word.

And it is fortunate that now-days it is possible to choose furniture that is fine and substantial at a fraction of the cost formerly asked for similar pieces. Furniture is indeed a "bargain" now and it is wise among the most attractive rooms recently seen was one done in the Early American manner—but it was Early American with a difference! None of your crude adaptations of this period, adaptations that seem to retain all the bad features of original and none of the good! This room was done in mahogany—a high-boy with brass drawer pulls and a brass urn ornamentation at the top. Its ample drawer space would prove a boon to the small apartment dweller. There was a book press, a piece with shelves whose glass doors were set in a delicate lattice-like tracery of wood. Below there were cabinets and drawers of commodious size. A Chippendale sofa stood at one end of the long room—it was upholstered in a kind of tomato-brown wood and the wood base was beautifully carved in a typical design. The wall at the opposite end of the room held two matched chairs and fireplace.

Snap Brims Snapping Right Back In Style For Man Who Dresses "Right"

During the past fall season the snap brim felt hat has featured the vogue in men's hats for several seasons retired a bit in favor of the off-the-face homburgs and semi-homburgs but the more dashing trend for the spring and sports seasons promises a strong revival of the snap-brim vogue.

Dark brown is a very prominent color for the early spring days to co-ordinate with a spring showing of brown effects in suits. Pearls, light tans, gray-blues and pastel tinges of greens, fawns, beige and the deeper shades of gray are outstanding spring colors. The leading snap brim block of the season has a bound edge brim with a deep roll in back and dips sharply over the forehead. Derbies are fairly small and noticeably more flat-set than last season.

SUMMER HAT STYLE

For the sports season and particularly for golf and riding the soft felt or crusher hat is making inroads into the cap business. The vogue for soft felts for sport has been given momentum by the number of golfers who prefer slacks to knickerbockers, as this type of hat always presents a better effect with the long trousers. Horsemen also are taking strongly to the soft felt with a hackcloth as a smart riding outfit. The caps that are shown are largely of the one-piece style and many of these follow the glen plaid trend seconded by small effects of the shepherd or houndstooth patterns.

In straw hats the flat set sennit promises to be the leader but panamas will run these a very close second. Leghorns, milans, bangkoks and bakus are waning in popularity. The vogue for fancy bands is coming back strong. Many sennits will carry glen plaid bands this summer.

Pronounced Patterns Characterize Men's Spring Apparel

ENTER THE COMBINATION OUTFIT

A decided departure in American styling is designed for this spring and summer season. That is the introduction of the vogue of wearing coat and vest of one pattern. While this vogue is of English influence, it is promoted in this country emanates from the smartest universities. It is largely born of the practice of university students of wearing sport jackets with slacks and its adoption has been paved by the liking of business men for wearing sport coats and flannel trousers during the summer season.

This style is now, however, by no means a strictly summer informal mode. It is to be adopted as a street and office convention. It contemplates the wearing of a checked coat with glen plaid trousers, or a coat of solid color with trousers of a lighter shade of the same color; or a coat of glen plaid or solid color with trousers of a herringbone pattern of a related shade.

Many and diverse will be the combinations that you will see and the designers have so well planned the contrast effects that they will leave no impression that the man is wearing orphan garments. They will reflect a well studied scheme of appropriateness, good taste and good teamwork.

SPORT MODELS IN THE ODD JACKET

The jackets of these coats will follow the lines prescribed for the ensemble suits. They will show both English drape and regulation models, but the great development will be toward sport details. Many of these jackets will have the Norfolk back with half-belt. Others will show the inverted pleat backs or plain backs with small knife pleats just above the belt line. Still others will show the full draped back with under-arm pleats and the more conservative will show only a moderate pinch-back treatment.

These jackets are mainly in smartly patterned tweeds, sedately patterned or solid color shetlands; novelty gabardines; glen plaid treatments in fine worsteds and chevrons and flannels in vertical effects of chalk line, hairline and pencil stripe designs.

The trousers on these combination outfits are cut fairly trim in contrast to the ample slacks for campus wear. They are mostly high-waisted and somewhat full across the hips following the details of the prescribed English drape treatment. Most of them are regulation in style details but those for more definite sport or lounge wear show side embellishments of button, loop or double-ring attachments. Zipper fasteners will not find much vogue in these dress trousers and that feature will be almost entirely confined to the campus slacks and sport varieties.

ABOUT SUMMER FORMAL

If this style is adopted as a convention for regular spring wear it might be supposed that there will be no change of pace for purely summer formal. This, however, is not expected to occur as the provisions for midsummer wear have been developed along the line of fabric variation. By that we mean that while the model and in a measure even the pattern scheme will carry over the fabrics for summer wear will change to novelty tropicals, new versions of shetlands, linens in sedate self-pattern treatments and glorified seersuckers and mohairs.

TOPCOATS, TOO, GO IN FOR PATTERN

Aside from the tweed topcoats of the past season or two the high vogue has been for box and polo coats in plain color shetlands and camel-hair. This spring we find the polo coat still the dominant style with the box coat close on its heels. However, the coats that you'll observe this spring will present more pattern character even in the shetlands and camel-hairs which have been considered a plain color fabric. The spring coats present neat self patterns in herringbones, stripes and a variety of other designs and kindred vertical effects but the plaid, block or interval stripe treatments. A very smart effect that promises to be most popular is a light tan foundation with cross lines of a slightly darker shade forming about one and a half two-inch blocks. Another is a tan foundation with a herringbone treatment of a darker shade of tan or brown. The softness of these camel-hair and shetland fabrics now embellished with more or less subdued patterns presents a very rich and tasty effect that this type of fabric has had before not known.

SLIGHT CHANGE IN MODELS

The three outstanding models in topcoats remain; the polo coat with all-around belt; the box coat, either single or double breasted and the English drape coat which has a more pronounced fitted effect than these others. The real topcoat style innovation is the reversible coat and is today the most worn coat at the most fashionable universities. This coat can be worn either side out, according to the weather. The side for dress on fair days is usually of tweed or fine worsted in a sedate pattern. The inside fabric is of a shower-proof gabardine. These coats are largely styled on what has been termed the bal-ragan model. It has the fullness of the balmacan coat of a few years back.

TWEEDS A FACTOR

While topcoats of shetland, llama and camel-hair are expected to lead the tweed box coat is by no means out of the style picture. These coats will follow pretty much the same pattern treatment as has been prescribed for the tweed suits. The Glen Plaid vogue has also obtruded itself into topcoat fashions.

soft fabrics as chevrons and cassimeres, but now we see them in fine worsteds and even in rough tweeds. Very often these overplaids are carried out in two-tone treatments of the same primary color. For instance, a light brown foundation with the pattern in a darker shade of brown. Or a light grey foundation with the pattern in blue-grey effect. Greys with greens, browns with blues, tans with blues and grey with reds are other smart combinations.

TWEEDS ARE VARI-COLORED

Tweeds will occupy an important place in the fabric line-up for spring as they have for the past two seasons but in patternings the tweeds of this spring are decided novelties. Instead of the conventional two-tone basket weave treatments, we now find vari-colored intermixtures almost of the pepper and salt variety. The most striking innovations in these tweeds are in fairly large interval overplaids, almost block designs and they are decidedly attractive and smart especially when worn by men of sufficient height and slimmness to carry off large pattern effects gracefully.

Also in these tweeds we see many check treatments of the shepherd and houndstooth variety. These have been popularized by the Prince of Wales and his brother and some very smart color combinations have been devised. They come in tan and brown, grey and black, dark blue and grey and black and white. They make fine lounge and sport effects and the jackets will go well with glen plaid slacks that are coming into high favor as combination outfits.

FLANNELS HAVE A FOLLOWING

Another important factor in the spring suit styles will be flannels. While flannels had some vogue last season in odd sport trousers, they have not been used with much prominence for complete suits for a season or two. Now they are coming back strong and offer a fine relief effect for the two suit man in that he can go in for the glen plaids and for variety wear a suit of striped flannels. Most of these flannels for spring come in vertical effects, largely in chalk line treatments. Blue with white or red stripes; Oxford or Cambridge greys with white or black stripes or tans with grey or red stripes are the smartest effects. Many of these will be worn in the double-breasted peak lapel models.

THE MODEL VARIETY

There have been no radical changes in the modeling of suits for this spring. The models that introduced themselves last spring and carried on throughout the fall seem to be simply enlarging on their gradual popularity. For instance the English drape suits were such a pronounced innovation last spring that it has taken a time for the rank and file to reconcile themselves to the idiosyncracies of this style. Somehow American men have always made a strong point of precise fit to which the English drape model is in some measure opposed. The idea of fullness across the chest and puckering at the sleeve heads did not at first set well with American men. They seem to fear that their wives and other uninformed clothes critics would get the impression that they were wearing ill-fitting clothes, but college men with their penchants and ability to wear clothes nonchalantly have done much to only to popularize the model but also to demonstrate the smartness with which this model can be worn and as a result an increased popularity for this style is forecast for the coming season.

There are various other soft construction models that are offered as a compromise to the English drape. These models somewhat subdue the fullness across the chest and the puckering sleeveheads but they adhere to the high-waisted effect and the loose back details of the English drape.

DOUBLE-BREASTEDS GAIN FAVOR

While the double-breasted coat has always been looked upon as a better fall than a spring style, it will be more prominent this spring than in many years. The trend toward odd jackets and trousers will have much to do with this increased popularity for the double-breasted coat. Another contributing factor will be the vogue for striped flannels which always look better and tailor better in the double-breasted models. During the summer season when men will wear odd jackets with sport trousers the double-breasted coats will be particularly strong.
